Parental Leave and GitLab's Global Parental Leave Policy

GitLab GmbH employees in Germany are entitled to both the statutory German parental and Maternity Leave as well as GitLab's global 16-week paid Parental Leave policy. Here's how these policies interact:

- Maternity Leave: The statutory Maternity Leave period (minimum 14 weeks for single births) is separate from and precedes both statutory German Parental Leave and GitLab's paid Parental Leave.
- Parental Leave: When overlapping with statutory paternity leave, GitLab's paid Parental Leave will substitute for the gaps in payment.
- No statutory paternity/Maternity Leave: If the GitLab team member does not apply for any statutory leave regarding the birth of their offspring, they are still eligible for GitLab's global 16-week paid Parental Leave policy.

Applying for Parental Leave in Germany

- Team members must register their Parental Leave in writing (wet signature) sent via mail to the German entity address:

text
Gitlab GmbH
c/o RPI Roehm International
Elsenheimerstraße 7
80687 München
Deutschland

- Parental leave must be registered 7 weeks before the desired start date if your child is under 3 years old, and 13 weeks prior to the desired start date if your child is between 3 and 8 years old.
- If your child is under 3 years old, you must declare for which periods within the next two years you want to take Parental Leave for.
- A request for Parental Leave by facsimile or email does not comply with the written form requirement and is therefore void.
- Please register your leave, in addition to the written application, by emailing leaves@domain.
- Submit your Parental Leave in Workday by selecting the Parental Leave option.
- Please familiarize yourself with GitLab's Parental Leave policy.

Part-time work during Parental Leave

During Parental Leave, employees are statutorily entitled to part-time work (15 to 32 hours per week) if:

- The employer usually employs more than 15 employees,
- the employment relationship exists for at least six months,
- the reduction is not opposed by urgent operational reasons, and
- the employee has submitted the request in writing (wet signature, see above) seven weeks for the period up to the child's third birthday and 13 weeks for the period between the child's third birthday and the completion of his or her eighth year of life before the start of the part-time work.

The request must include the start and scope of the reduced working hours.

For expecting non-birthing parents, team members can apply for a state benefit (Basiselterngeld, ElterngeldPlus or Partnerschaftsbonus). If a team member is eligible for Parental Leave, GitLab will supplement Parental Leave pay for up to 16 weeks of Parental Leave or pay the team member's full salary for the 16-week Parental Leave, when used prior to the child's first birthday. Please notify the Absence Management team at leaves@domain which state benefit you are applying for and how much you will be receiving so that payroll can process the appropriate supplementary amount. Team members can find further information on Parental Leave benefits via the Federal Ministry for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth.

Vacation Leave

Team members are entitled to at least 20 vacation days which run concurrently with GitLab's PTO policy. The days will accrue from the team member's start date. In general, team members must take their annual vacation days during the calendar year, otherwise it is forfeited. However, unused vacation days can be carried forward until the 31st of March of the next calendar year if the team member was unable to take the holiday due to operational or personal reasons. Team members must designate all vacation time taken as Paid Time Off in Workday to ensure that vacation entitlement is properly tracked.

Long-term Care Insurance (Pflegeversicherung)

Long-term care insurance was introduced on January 1, 1995 as an independent branch of social insurance. Comprehensive compulsory insurance applies to all those who are legally or privately insured. Everyone who has statutory health insurance is automatically covered by social long-term care insurance. Anyone who is insured in the statutory health insurance automatically belongs to the social long-term care insurance scheme.

Family Care Leave and Nursing Leave

Per the Family Care Leave Act and the Care Leave Act, in certain cases team members are able to receive partial or full care allowance as a wage replacement benefit. This is granted on request by the long-term care insurance (Pflegeversicherung) of the team member in need of care. Please contact the German citizen hotline for health insurance at (030) 340 60 66-01 or the German Federal Ministry of Health at poststelle \(at\) bmg.bund.de for more information. Please also review the Care Guide

Eligibility:

- Team members who need time to organize or ensure the care of a close relative in need of care in an acute care situation leave for up to ten days;
- Team members who care for a close relative or a close relative at home can also, under certain conditions, take full or partial leave of work for up to six months.
 - GitLab must be informed at least ten working days before the leave commences.
- Team members who accompany a close relative in the last phase of life can claim full or partial leave from work for up to three months;

- Team members who care for a close relative in need of care in a home environment are entitled to family care leave, i.e. to a partial leave of absence for one continuous period of up to 24 months with a minimum of 15 working hours per week;
- If the relative is underage, there is an entitlement to leave even if care takes place outside the home environment.

This leave runs concurrently with GitLab's Sick Time policy. When partial paid leave is claimed, GitLab will supplement the team member's benefit so that they receive 100% of their pay for the first 25 days of leave. Please contact the Absence Management team at leaves@domain to ensure your eligibility and provide awareness of your proposed leave.

How to Apply:

- Team members must email leaves@domain proof of the relevant illness of the close relative by means of a medical certificate.

Sick Leave

Statutory Sick Leave

Team members are entitled to 100% of their salary, to be paid by GitLab, for up to the first six weeks if they are unable to work due to an illness. This runs concurrently with GitLab's Sick Time policy.

- If a team member is sick for more than six weeks, they can apply for "Krankengeld" from their health insurer. The benefit amount will be less than the team member's salary.

Beginning January 1, 2023 team members with statutory health insurance are not required to provide GitLab with a hard copy of their certificate of incapacity to work (AU certificate). Instead, the health insurance company will provide corresponding incapacity data electronically and GitLab will then "call up" this data.

- Team Members with private health insurance will still be required to email leaves@domain a hard copy of their certificate no later than the 4th day of illness.

Reporting Guidelines

Team members are still required to report their absence(s) to GitLab, but AU certificates are not required until after the 3rd day of an absence. Beginning the first day, team members should notify their Manager first, and then enter the time away into Workday by selecting the label Out Sick under the Time Offs dropdown menu. After 3 days of continuous absences, team members should first notify the Absence Management team (leaves@domain) of their sick leave (including the start and anticipated end date) and then enter the time away into Workday using the label Out Sick under the Leave Types dropdown menu. The Absence Management Team will then "call up" the AU certificate on behalf of the team member.

- Team Members with private health insurance will still be required to email leaves@domain a hard copy of their certificate no later than the 4th day of illness.

During COVID-19

We encourage all team members to meet with a virtual doctor for the certificate to avoid the need to leave home.

Infection Protection Act

The Infection Protection Act was recently updated with a few amendments related to entitlement to expanded children's sickness benefits related to the Coronavirus. Please review the current law of the Infection Protection Act (IfSG) and contact your doctor to see how it applies to your situation and family.

Timekeeping Policies

It is mandatory for every Spanish company to register the working day of its employees and these timekeeping records must be kept for four years.

Trust-based working time generally refers to a GitLab's way of working, a flexible working time model in which team members can independently decide on the location and timing (i.e. beginning and end) of their work day. GitLab trusts that team members will fulfill their work obligations. A documentation of working hours does not stand in the way of such an agreement. This documentation does serve to protect the safety and health of employees and ensure rest is taken.

Timekeeping Record

As of May 1, 2024 each team member employed by GitLab Iberia will be required to log the start and end of their daily work time. We have provided a Google spreadsheet template, in English or Spanish. This record will be kept by Payroll and can be audited at any time.

Daily Work Time

Team members will render their services on a full-time basis and the annual working hours at GitLab will be in accordance with applicable legislation and the applicable CBA.

Rest Policy

Between work days, team members are entitled to an uninterrupted rest period of 12 hours. Additionally team members are entitled to a weekly rest period of 1.5 uninterrupted days (usually taken on weekends).

Overtime

Overtime, if appropriate, must be expressly and previously authorized in writing by GitLab. If GitLab has not required or authorized overtime work, then team members should not exceed the normal daily working hours and such time worked in excess will not be considered overtime for any purposes.

Timesheets

Team members will be expected to fill out a monthly timesheet at the end of each month. The timesheet template can be found here and either the English or Spanish version can be used.

Submitting Timesheets

1. Completed timesheets must be submitted before the 2nd of the following month.

Spain-Specific Expenses

Team members will receive the monthly remote working allowance established under the CBA, which will be paid monthly, processed by payroll and will be listed on your payslip as PLUS TELETRABAJO.

Any additional expenses will be reimbursed under the GitLab Global Travel and Expense Policy, up to any limits set by GitLab.

Spain-Specific Leave

Below is the information related to Spain's statutory leave policies. Team members may also be eligible for GitLab company leave policies as well, which will run concurrently with statutory policies whenever allowed by law.

Team Members must enter all scheduled time off at least 30 days prior to the start date to prevent delays or discrepancies in their pay. Any unplanned time away must be entered as soon as possible.

Holiday Leave

All full-time workers are legally entitled to 23 working days of paid holiday (PTO) leave a year. In addition, full-time workers are eligible for up to 14 days of paid public holidays a year.

Sick Leave

Team members are entitled to paid sick leave from the fourth day up to 365 days (extendable by an additional 180 days) if they have provided medical certification. Team Members must submit sick leave confirmation reports, if any, within three days after they are signed off work by a doctor. All reports or medical notes can be sent to the Absence Management Team (leaves@gitlab).

If an occupational accident is involved, sick leave (including the first three days) is paid by the Safety Service of the Mutual Insurance Company for six months (extendable by another six months).

Reporting Sick Leave

Team members must first notify their manager of their need for sick leave and then enter all sick time into Workday by selecting the Out Sick label. Then, team members must contact the Absence Management Team and provide a medical certificate in order to take sick leave and claim sick pay.

Sick Pay

If a team member has made at least 180 days of social security contributions throughout the previous five years, and has a sickness or injury lasting more than 20 days, they may be declared temporarily disabled by the National Social Security Institute. In that case, the contract of employment is suspended with the position reserved (i.e. without mutual obligations).

of work and payment) during the period of disability, and the team member is entitled to a partial wage replacement benefits.

Sick Pay is calculated as follows:

- The first three days are unpaid, unless otherwise agreed.
- The fourth to the fifteenth days are paid by the employer at the rate of 60% of the contribution base.
- The sixteenth to the twentieth days are paid by the National Social Security Institute at the rate of 60% of the contribution base.
- Thereafter, the National Social Security Institute pays the team member at the rate of 75% of the contribution base for up to 365 days (extendable by an additional 180 days).

In the case of an occupational temporary disability, the team member subsidy is paid as follows:

- The first day is unpaid, unless otherwise agreed.
- The second to the fifteenth days are paid by the employer at the rate of 75% of the contribution base.
- Thereafter, the National Social Security Institute pays the team member at the rate of 75% of the contribution base for up to six months (extendable by an additional six months).

Paid Maternity leave

team members in Spain are eligible for up to 16 weeks of Maternity leave. This rises to 18 weeks for twins and 20 weeks in the case of triplets. For children with disabilities there is an additional two weeks.

Four out of the 16 weeks may be taken prior to the birth of the child. At least six uninterrupted weeks must be taken immediately following the birth. Also, if you have to take time off whilst pregnant for medical reasons, you are still entitled to the 16 weeks maternity leave after your child is born.

It is also possible to use the 16 weeks in combination with a part-time working timetable or even add holiday time that you are due in order to extend your leave.

For mothers of premature babies or where a baby has to remain in hospital for more than seven days following the birth, standard maternity leave can be extended for up to 13 weeks.

During the maternity period, team members are not paid a salary, but instead a maternity benefit. This contribution is paid directly from the Social Security Administration to the team member.

Same-sex couples: both parents are entitled to paid leave. One will have to apply for paternity benefits, and the other for maternity benefits. However, in order to qualify for paid paternity (or maternity) benefits, it is essential that each parent has a legal link with the child. This means that paid leave will only be granted either:

- If you are a biological parent; or
- If you have legally adopted the child.

- Being married to the biological or adoptive parent of a child does not qualify for paid leave.

Applying for Maternity Leave

In order to be eligible for paid maternity leave, you must make sure to meet the following requirements:

- You must be working for a company, or as a self-employed worker.
- If you are below 21 years old, you won't be required to have made contributions to social security before.
- If you are 21 to 26 years old, then you must be making contributions to social security for at least 90 days during the past 7 years, or 180 days during your entire working life.
- If you are over 26 years old, 180 days during the past 7 years or at least 360 days during your working life.

If you don't meet this requirement, you can still get your maternity leave and get paid during those 16 weeks. Under certain conditions, you will get a non-contributory pension, which pays approximately 530€ per month. Team Members will need to request your work-life certificate at the "Tesorería de la Seguridad Social", which can be requested online.

To help plan your leave click: How Much Exactly Will You Get Paid On Leave.

Please enter the dates of your leave in Workday by selecting the Parental leave label about 30 days prior to the start of your leave. The Absence Management team will contact you with more information.

Unpaid Maternity Leave

Excedencia sin sueldo offers the right to take extended leave from work for up to a maximum of three years in total for a mother to care for her children and still return to the same employer. You can request that your exact post be held for a maximum of one year, after which you may be offered a similar post for up to 2 years.

During this absence you will still be recognized as contributing to the social security system. You do not need to agree the time period with your employer beforehand and legally you are required to give two weeks notice before returning to your post.

Paternity Leave

Team Members in Spain are eligible for 16 weeks of Paternity leave. The first six weeks must be taken immediately and consecutively after the child's birth, whereas the other 10 weeks can be taken non-consecutively during the first 12 months of the baby's life, which can be extended by one week per child in the case of a multiple birth. An extra week's leave can also be applied for if the baby is born with a disability or health problems. If the baby is premature or has to be hospitalized for longer than seven days, leave can be extended for up to an additional 13 weeks.

This leave must be taken in batches of one week as a minimum, but the weeks can be split over time if desired. The father is also entitled to take unpaid childcare leave until the child is three years old.

Please enter the dates of your leave in Workday by selecting the Parental Leave label. The Absence Management team will contact you with more information.

Paternity Leave Payments

As long as the father has correctly paid his social security contributions for a minimum of 180 working days within the past seven years or 360 total days in his entire professional life, 100% of his salary will be covered (as long as payment does not exceed 4070.10 EUR).

This money comes from the Spanish government, not his employer, though employers are liable for certain taxes that pertain to the salary, such as withholding.

Applying for Parental Leave in Spain

To initiate your parental leave, submit your time off by selecting the Parental Leave label in Workday at least 30 days before your leave starts.

Breastfeeding leave

Parents can take an additional breastfeeding leave after parental leave. This breastfeeding leave can be enjoyed in two ways:

- Take one hour off during the day, until the child is nine months old (it can either be one hour, or half an hour at the beginning and at the end of the working day)
- Take 15 consecutive days after the parental leave

The breastfeeding leave is considered as working time, meaning that the team member doesn't receive anything from Social Security and is paid by the company at 100%.

Other leave policies

- Adoption leave: upon adoption of a child or have taken in a foster child, team members are entitled to the same entitlements apply as for maternity and paternity rights. Applies to both parents. When adopting or fostering a child, each parent is eligible for the same 16 weeks as is the biological parent if the child is under six years old. If the child is older, both adoptive parents are eligible for the remaining optional 10 weeks that a biological parent would have after the first obligatory six weeks after birth.
- Emergency and short absence leave: intended for unforeseen personal circumstances for which an team member has to take time off immediately. Examples include making arrangements for the care of a sick family member or in the event of a death in the family. Up to two calendar days or four if travel is required.
- Long-term care leave: when a child, partner or parent of the team member is seriously (i.e. life threateningly) ill and requires care, the team member can request long-term care leave.
- Unpaid leave: the team member may take unpaid leave in consultation with the employer on a full-time or part-time basis. Granted at the discretion of the employer, but must always be set in an individual or collective agreement. Unpaid leave periods are not regulated by law.
- Menstrual Leave: team members are entitled to three days of menstrual leave, with the possibility of extending it to five days. Team members must send their medical certificate to the Absence Management Team. Social security will pay the sickness benefit from the day of the sick leave during the menstrual leave. No minimum contribution period is required to be entitled to menstrual leave.

Legal Policies

The Legal Policies page of the Handbook serves as a directory of relevant policies.

Timekeeping

It is mandatory to record the working day of team members employed in Israel and team members undertake to report their actual working hours, as may be required by the company.

Trust-based working time generally refers to a GitLab's way of working, a flexible working time model in which team members can independently decide on the location and timing (i.e. beginning and end) of their work days. GitLab trusts that team members will fulfill their work obligations and documentation of working hours does not stand in the way of such an agreement. This documentation does serve to protect the safety and health of employees and ensure rest is taken.

Timekeeping Record

Each team member employed by GitLab Israel Ltd. will be required to report their actual working hours using the methods prescribed (the details of which will be shared in due course, please hold tight!). These records will be kept by Payroll and can be audited at any time.

Daily Work Time

Team members will generally render their services on a full-time basis, noting that the standard working days and hours will be in accordance with applicable legislation and team member's employment contracts. Currently they are 5 days a week between Sunday and Thursday, four days of 9 gross hours (including lunch and rest breaks) per day and one shorter day of 8 gross hours including breaks.

Rest Periods

Each team member is entitled to a rest period of at least 8 hours between work days and to 36 continuous off-hours per week, including their rest day. The regular weekly rest day is Saturday.

Overtime

The fact that team members may work beyond the regular work hours, overtime hours and/or on irregular days is reflected in a monthly consideration, payable as salary, and team members should not work hours or days beyond this quota (60 hours) without prior written approval. If GitLab has not required or authorized overtime work, then any such time worked in excess will not be considered overtime for any purposes.

Payroll Details

Payroll information will be linked in due course - please hold tight!

Israel-Specific Team Member Benefits

Currently, GitLab provides the below additional benefits, in addition to mandatory state requirements. General GitLab benefits still apply. As part of the guiding principles, we will continuously review our benefits design and offerings available through GitLab in Israel.

Pension

All team members in Israel are enrolled in the Pension Arrangement. In general the Pension Plan contributions are outlined below, however please refer to your employment agreement for specific details.

- Team Members contribute 6% of eligible earnings through payroll deductions. Team Members have the option to increase their payroll deductions if they choose, up to 7% max.
- GitLab contributes up to 6.5% (includes disability) and 8.33% (severance pay). There are special cases where this may vary, please refer to your employee contract for specifics.
- You can elect and personalize your plan via Shaldan or your private insurance agency.
- Employer contributions are based on your eligible earnings, the definition of eligible earning is base salary, overtime and (where applicable) earned and paid commission up to and including 100% of quota.

Pension contributions continue while on leave, with the exception of unpaid leave.

Enrollment & Administration of the Pension Plan

During onboarding Total Rewards team will connect team members with our broker, Shaldan, to set up their pension arrangement. Shaldan will work with the Payroll accountant who will deduct the employee contributions and fund the pensions appropriately.

Shaldan is the operating agent who is responsible for ensuring funds are received by the pension accounts.

When team members leave GitLab, they will need to connect with Shaldan to assist payroll in generating a form that will contain the amount of Severance pay, to fill out form 161.

Study Fund

A Study Fund (Keren Hishtalmut) is a savings instrument in Israel with special tax benefits. Team Members can use the fund to save for education expenses, and other financial goals beyond education.

Team Member contribution to the study fund is 2.5% of their determined salary, which is deducted on a monthly basis. GitLab contributes 7.5% of determined salary to the study fund.

Study Fund contributions continue while on leave, with the exception of unpaid leave.

Meal Card

Israel Team Members are granted a meal allowance of up to NIS 1100 per month. This amount can be accumulated for up to three months in the future in an amount of up to NIS 1,700. Vouchers are managed through Cibus. Team members will receive a debit card to use the benefit.

Team Members do not receive the meal allowance while on unpaid leave.

Transportation Allowance

This policy applies to all Israel-based GitLab team members who choose to work from a co-working space regularly and meet the requirements outlined in the Global Expense Co-Working Space Policy

This allowance is intended to cover travel expenses from the team member's residence to the co-working space.

Note: This allowance will be paid through payroll rather than reimbursed through Navan. While the Global Expense Policy generally excludes transportation to and from co-working spaces from reimbursement, the Israel transportation allowance will still be processed as outlined here. If a team member works from a co-working space on a one-off basis while traveling for business, travel expenses should be reimbursed via Navan in line with the Global Expense Policy.

<summary>Eligibility Criteria</summary>

- The co-working space must be in line with the Global Expense Co-Working Space Policy

Accrued Recuperation

Accrued Recuperation is an Israel entitlement meant to help fund expenses that encourage recuperation and recovery. GitLab will pay the Accrued Recuperation payment in July, in accordance with applicable law. The pay is subject to completion of one year of employment.

Gifts

As customary, Gifts are offered for major holidays such as Passover and Rosh Hashanah at the company's discretion. These gifts are provided through a gross payment in payroll. Please note that the gift amount will be subject to taxation.

Medical

GitLab does not plan to offer Private Health Insurance at this time because all the Israel team members will be covered by a statutory benefit through Kupat Holim. This health insurance scheme covers all the team members and their family members.

Leave Policy

Annual Leave

Team members in Israel may make use of GitLab's Flexible PTO Policy, as may be amended from time to time, in addition to their statutory vacation entitlements, which will accrue in accordance with local laws. Team members should check their individual employment contracts for the minimum number of vacation days to which they are entitled and note that team members are required to take at least five consecutive vacation days each year.

The accrual and use period for statutory vacation days is the calendar year, from 1 January 1 to 31 December, and any unused statutory vacation leave will be forfeited if not used within the balance period.

Team members with a full-time, 5-day working week are entitled to the following number of statutory vacation days:

- 16 days during their first five years of service
- 18 days from the sixth year
- 21 days from their seventh year, and
- from the eighth year onward, 1 additional day per year of service up to a maximum of 28 days.

Annual leave payment is calculated at the regular salary pay rate.

Sick Leave

Under the applicable Israeli law, team members are entitled to 1.5 days of sick leave per month, up to a maximum of 90 days. From the first day of sick leave, the team member is not entitled to statutory pay, but on the second and third day of sickness, the team member is entitled to 50% of their regular pay. The team member is entitled to 100% of their regular pay from the fourth day onward. Upon return, team members must provide a medical certificate from a medical professional. All medical certificates should be sent to the Absence Management Team (leaves@domain.com).

Under the Sick Pay Law amendment a team member suffering from a malignant disease (i.e. cancer) or a condition that requires regular dialysis treatments, or who recovered from such a disease, is eligible for full sick pay (100%) from the first day of absence, if on leave from work to receive care or undergo periodic examinations for that condition (up to a maximum of 90 days). Team members must provide a medical certificate from a medical professional confirming the necessity of treatment or examination because of the condition.

Team members may be eligible for GitLab's Sick Time Policy, which runs concurrently with the statutory process, and will supplement a team member's pay up to 100% of their regular salary for up to 25 working days of continuous absences. Eligibility is calculated on a rolling 12-month period and only pertains to absences when team members need to be away from work for 5 or more continuous days or non-continuous if related to the same illness. Team members must notify their manager first, and then enter the time away into 'Workday' by selecting the label Out Sick. If a team member is out sick for more than 5 working days, they must contact the Absence Management Team (leaves@domain.com).

Maternity Leave

Team members with one year or more of service are entitled to 26 weeks of maternity leave. The team member may take up to seven weeks of leave before the predicted due date of the child and the remainder after the birth. Israel's social security system compensates the maternity leave if the team member is eligible which generally equals 15 weeks of fully paid leave and 11 weeks of unpaid leave.

Team members who have worked for the company for less than one year are entitled to 15 weeks of maternity leave.

- A team member may extend their maternity leave entitlement by three weeks in the case of multiple or complicated births.

- In the unfortunate circumstance that a mother loses her child after the birth or after the 22nd week of pregnancy, she is still eligible for maternity leave.

Team members must take at least 7 weeks of maternity leave after the child is born. After the 7th week of leave, the mother can choose to return to work and transfer the remaining maternity leave period to her spouse.

Maternity leave runs concurrently with GitLab's Parental Leave. About 30 days before the expected due date, team members should enter their time away into 'Workday' by selecting the label Parental Leave.

Adoption Leave

Team members shall be entitled to an adoption leave similar in terms to a maternity leave as described above as well as to nursing benefits if the child is aged under 10 at the beginning of the adoption leave. The difference in terms regarding adoptive parent is that the commencement date of leave is the date the child came into the custody of the adoptive parent.

Surrogacy Leave

Team members who are intended parents in a surrogacy process are also qualified for maternity leave as described above. The difference in terms regarding intended parents is that the commencement date of leave is the date the child came into the custody of the intended parent.

Paternity Leave

Paternity leave begins immediately following a partner going into labor and up to 24 hours following the birth, a team member is allowed to be absent from work for up to 5 days as paternity leave. The first three days of this leave will be paid from their accrued annual vacation and the remaining two days will be deducted from their accrued sick leave.

Paternity leave runs concurrently with GitLab's Parental Leave and provides team members with up to 16 weeks of paid leave. About 30 days before the expected due date, team members should enter their time away into 'Workday' by selecting the label Parental Leave.

Statutory Parental Leave

If maternity leave is being shared, fathers can take days off after the birth of a child, but these days will be subtracted from the maternity leave. If maternity leave is not being shared, team members are still eligible for up to 16 weeks of GitLab Parental Leave.

Any statutory Parental leave taken will run concurrently with GitLab's Parental Leave. About 30 days before the expected due date, team members should enter their time away into 'Workday' by selecting the label Parental Leave.

Parenting Hour

Full-time team members returning to work after the end of maternity leave are entitled to a shorter working day by one hour each day, for a period of 4 months. Both parents can share this entitlement, subject to a prior written acknowledgment to their respective employers regarding their intention to do so, 21 days before the end of maternity leave.

Fertility Treatment Leave

Team members undergoing fertility treatment may be entitled to a leave from work (similar in nature to sick leave) during the term of the treatment, if they have received their doctor's approval that the treatment requires so, and subject to notifying GitLab in advance.

Bereavement Leave

In Israel, in the event of a death of an immediate family member, team members are entitled to up to seven calendar days of paid leave to grieve for their loss.

Team members should enter the time away into 'Workday' by selecting the label Bereavement.

Service Duty Leave

Military service is mandatory in Israel and an employee serving on reserve duty must still be paid by their employer.

In Israel, team members serving on reserve duty will still be paid by GitLab and GitLab will then apply for a refund of reservist's benefit.

If requesting military service leave, a team member should contact leaves@gitlab.com with the details and team members should enter the time away into 'Workday' by selecting the label Military Service under the Leaves dropdown menu.

In order to enable GitLab to apply for a refund of reservist's benefit, the team member should provide confirmation of the reserve duty period (by a form 3010 unless exempt from doing so). Where a differential is received by GitLab for a benefit of a higher amount than a team member's wage, this differential will be paid to the team member.

Note that a 40% supplement on reserve benefit will be paid proactively by the National Insurance, without the need to file a claim once the exact period of service of each reservist can be determined.

Fiscal Year

A fiscal year is a one-year period that corporations use for accounting and budgeting. GitLab's Fiscal Year runs from February 1 to January 31. The fiscal year naming correlates to the ending month of the given fiscal year, for example FY26 is GitLab's fiscal year running February 1, 2025 to January 31, 2026.

- Q1: February 1 through April 30
- Q2: May 1 through July 31
- Q3: August 1 through October 31
- Q4: November 1 through January 31

Invoice template and where to send

Vendor invoices are to be sent to ap@gitlab.com and payroll@gitlab.com for contractors. An invoice template can be found in Google Docs by the name of "Invoice Template".

Non-US contractors not from Hungary, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Nigeria, South Africa, Switzerland, and Ukraine will get pay their monthly wages and expenses through iiPay. Here is the process:

- enter bank information in Workday under Bank Information tab. Note - new contractor should enter their bank information within 3 business days from their start date.
- enter VAT number if it is available
- submit monthly salary/bonus/commission invoice in through Google form by the 8th of each month (as described to you during onboarding)
- submit expenses through Navan Expense by the 8th of each month
- the scheduled payment date is the 22nd of each month
- iiPay will send out remittance advice along with the scheduled payment via your GitLab email address

Non-US contractors from Italy, Nigeria, South Africa, Switzerland, and Ukraine will need to send their monthly invoice for salary/bonus/commission and any expenses by the 15th to payroll@gitlab.com.

In many cases, VAT will not be payable on transactions between GitLab BV and EU-based vendors/contractors, thanks to "Shifted VAT". To make use of this shifted VAT:

- The vendor/contractor writes the phrase "VAT shifted to recipient according to article 44 and 196 of the European VAT Directive" on the invoice along with the VAT-number of GitLab IT BV (NL860316828B01).
- On the vendor's VAT return the revenue from GitLab BV goes to the rubric "Revenue within the EU". It goes without saying that vendors are responsible for their own correct and timely filings.
- GitLab BV files the VAT on the VAT return, and is generally able to deduct this VAT all as part of the same return.

Timesheets for Hourly Employees

1. People Ops and Finance will share a private Google Sheet with you where you will log your hours for each day in the "hours" column.
1. There is a dropdown in the "pay type" column, with the default being Regular. There are also options for Overtime, Vacation, Sick, and Bereavement. Choose the appropriate pay type for your time.
1. If you work overtime or more hours than agreed upon in your contract, please obtain approval from your manager and forward to Finance before payroll cutoff.
1. Your timesheet is due one day prior to the submit payroll date, which is outlined for the calendar year on your timesheet.

How spend is allocated to departments

Budgets are aligned to departments, and budgets follow the owner who requested the spend. When determining who should request the spend, consider the owner of the outcome.

For example, work to enable a sales partner that will not be incorporated into the product would go to Sales. Work that will be part of the product and supported by engineering, should be charged to the Engineering budget.
