

GitLab, an exception must be granted. To obtain an exception create an access request outlining the business case, and do not proceed until the exception has been granted.

When creating an account with and using a file sharing service other than Google Drive, Team Members must:

- Where available, use the Sign in with Google single sign-on option using a GitLab Google Workspace account, rather than creating an account using a GitLab (or other provider) email address and password.
- Only upload files directly to shared folders created by those external to GitLab and do not upload files to the personal area of the file sharing service.
- Remove all files and close the account when the file sharing service is no longer needed.

Lost or Stolen Procedures

GitLab provides a panic@gitlab.com email address and a lost or stolen procedure for team members to use in situations that require an immediate security response. Should a team member lose a device such as a thumb drive, Yubikey, mobile phone, tablet, laptop, etc. that contains their credentials or other GitLab-sensitive data, they should send an email to panic@gitlab.com right away. When the production and security teams receive an email sent to this address it will be handled immediately. Using this address provides an excellent way to limit the damage caused by a loss of one of these devices.

GitLab reserves the right to request documentation of the theft and/or a related police report in the case of a stolen laptop.

Policy Compliance

Compliance with this policy will be verified through various methods, including but not limited to, automated reporting, audits, and feedback to the policy owner.

Any Team Member or contractor found to be in violation of this policy may be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment, or contractual agreement.

Consultations

To consult with the Security Team create an issue in the Security Compliance tracker.

Exceptions

Exceptions to this policy must be approved by Security, Legal and PeopleOps Departments.

- Onboarding Issue
- Data Classification Standard
- Asset return procedure
- Lost or stolen asset procedure

Introduction

Everyone at GitLab has a responsibility to prevent and stop harassment. Working remotely means that the majority of our interactions are by video call or written communication, such as email or shared documents. The exceptions to this are team summits, attending conferences together, and local team meetups. No matter the method of communication, it is expected that everyone will contribute to an inclusive and collaborative working environment and respect each other at all times. Team member behavior is not limited to internal interactions with each other. Our Anti-harassment policy applies to GitLab team members interaction with customers, vendors and community members. Should you become aware of or witness any form of harassment or behavior that violates this policy or our company values, please report the incident directly to the Chief People Officer, Team Member Relations, or a People Business Partner immediately for thorough investigation.

Perspective

GitLab is a global organization and our team is distributed all over the world, so we strive to ensure our team is fully aligned with GitLab's no tolerance harassment policy despite their location. We want everyone to feel confident and comfortable communicating concerns. GitLab respects, appreciates, understands and supports every aspect of diversity. We aim to continuously foster a globally aware team.

Scope

This policy applies to all team members of GitLab, whether contractor or employee, in all locations. There are local labor laws in every country and in the case of the United States, state laws, that must be followed when handling, reporting and investigating incidents of harassment. The People Business Partner team and legal counsel, if required, in each of those countries will be called upon to ensure compliance and the appropriate legal processes and procedures are followed. Specific country requirements for employees (subject to changes in employment law) are listed in the Country & US State-Specific Requirements section and will be updated regularly. All individual contributors, managers, and leaders will be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination, for any act of harassment they commit.

Roles and Responsibilities

| Role | Responsibility |

Types of Harassment

The following are considered forms of harassment and will not be tolerated by GitLab:

Sexual Harassment

Sexual harassment is considered unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature that is sufficiently persistent or offensive enough to interfere with the receiver's job performance or create an intimidating, hostile or offensive working environment.

Sexual harassment encompasses a wide range of conduct. Examples of misconduct include, but may not be limited to, the following actions:

1. Physical assaults or the attempt to commit an assault of a sexual nature. This physical conduct can include touching, pinching, patting, grabbing, brushing against or poking another team member's body.
1. Unwelcome sexual advances, propositions or other sexual comments, such as sexually oriented gestures, noises, remarks, jokes, or comments about a person's sexuality or sexual experience.
1. Preferential treatment or promises of preferential treatment to a team member for submitting to sexual conduct, including soliciting or attempting to solicit any team member to engage in sexual activity for compensation or reward.
1. Subjecting, or threats of subjecting a team member to unwelcome sexual attention or conduct or intentionally making performance of the team member's role more difficult because of that team member's sex.
1. Creating displays, communications, or publications that include content of a sexually offensive nature.
1. Purposely misgendering people, such as consistently referring to someone as 'he' after repeated requests to use 'she' or vice versa.

Sexual harassment is unlawful and is considered a form of team member misconduct. Sanctions will be enforced against individuals engaging in sexual harassment and against supervisory and managerial personnel who knowingly allow such behavior to continue. Any retaliation against an individual who complains of sexual harassment or who testifies or assists in any proceeding under the law is unlawful.

Discrimination

Having a diverse workforce, made up of team members who bring a wide variety of skills, abilities, experiences and perspectives, is essential to our success. We are committed to the principles of equal opportunity, inclusion, and respect. All employment-related decisions must be based on company needs, job requirements, and individual qualifications. Always take full advantage of what our team members have to offer; listen and be inclusive.

We do not tolerate discrimination against anyone, including team members, customers, business partners, or other stakeholders. Any form of discrimination towards an individual is strictly prohibited, including:

- On the basis of race (includes national origin or ancestry, ethnicity, national origin or ethnic characteristics; interracial marriage or association; traits historically associated with race, including hair texture, protective hairstyles, and any other national origin or ancestry "as specified by a complainant in a complaint"), color, religion (including all aspects of religious observance and practice, as well as belief or lack of religious belief), sex (including pregnancy, childbirth and related medical conditions; breastfeeding; sex assigned at birth; gender identity or gender expression; affectional or sexual orientation, including heterosexuality, homosexuality, bisexuality, and asexuality; and differences of sex development, variations of sex characteristics, or other intersex characteristics), age, disability, HIV status, marital status, past or present military service, life expectancy, or any other status protected by the laws or regulations in the locations where we operate.
- We comply with laws regarding employment of immigrants and non-citizens and provide equal employment opportunity to everyone who is legally authorized to work in the applicable country.
- We provide reasonable accommodations to individuals with disabilities and remove any artificial barriers to success.

Report suspected discrimination right away and never retaliate against anyone who raises a good faith belief that unlawful discrimination has occurred.

If you believe you have been discriminated against or witnessed discriminatory practices, please contact the Chief People Officer, a People Business Partner, or the Team Member Relations Specialist to initiate an investigation into the behavior. GitLab has also engaged Lighthouse Services to provide anonymous reporting methods, as described in the How to Report Violations section.

Bullying / Workplace Violence

GitLab does not tolerate violent acts or threats of violence. The company will not tolerate fighting, bullying, coercion, or use of abusive or threatening words directed to, about, or against a co-worker, lead, manager, executive, candidate, client/customer, vendor, contributor, or any other person. No individual employed by GitLab should commit or threaten to commit any violent act or discuss committing such offenses, even in a joking manner.

Retaliation

Retaliation of any sort for filing a claim of harassment will not be tolerated. If you believe you have been retaliated against, please contact the Chief People Officer, Team Member Relations or a People Business Partner to initiate an investigation.

Speaking up during a public situation

If someone messes up, people are encouraged to speak up publicly and within the moment, in order to let that person and others know that what happened was not inclusive behavior.

This makes for a situation from which all parties can learn, and is one which promotes understanding. Additionally it makes it possible for that person to de-escalate the situation by correcting themselves and apologizing.

This does not ensure there will be no consequences. However, it will greatly reduce the chance of escalation and has the potential to help a situation become comfortable and inclusive again.

Reporting a Physical Threat

If a threat is made against you or someone else that makes you or another team member question their safety due to an issue, merge request, email or other work related matters do not hesitate to initiate the following process:

1. Contact local law enforcement. Note the proper number to contact in your locality and whether the emergency, or non-emergency number should be called.
1. Notify the People Connect Team via a HelpLab request. A private slack channel may then be opened with your People Business Partner, People Connect Team member, Team Member Relations, Manager, and the security team helping with the situation.
1. The following steps may be taken based on the threat:
 - Internal threat assessment
 - Temporary accommodation (friends, family, hotel, etc.)
 - Transportation to alternate location (stay with family/friends for example)
 - Time off from work/LOA
 - Personal Security Detail
1. The above can be triggered by the People Connect Team, Manager, Team Member Relations, or People Business Partner based on their knowledge of the threat. Whenever it is safe to do so, please go through the normal permissions work flow, however if a threat is credible and potentially imminent, immediate action may be taken before the approvals have been put in place.
1. The Sr. Director of Security will advise when it is best to halt any of the above tasks.

Reporting Alleged Harassment

1. Any individual who believes they have been the target of harassment of any kind is encouraged to immediately and directly address the harasser, letting them know that their behavior is unwelcome, offensive, and must stop immediately.
1. If they do not wish to address the harasser directly or the behavior doesn't cease, they should report the misconduct to the Chief People Officer, Team Member Relations or a People Business Partner.
1. Once reported, an impartial investigation will be conducted by a People Business Partner or by an independent third party, depending on the severity and circumstances of the complaint.
1. Individual(s) reporting an incident or pattern of behavior will be asked to provide a written account, including any action(s) causing concern, the dates and times such actions occurred, and the names of anyone involved, including the participants and witnesses. All complaints or concerns of alleged harassment or discrimination will be taken seriously and handled confidentially.

The Role of Managers

If managers become aware of misconduct, they must deal with any allegations expeditiously, seriously, confidentially, and fairly, whether or not there has been a written or formal complaint made to People Business partner. Informed managers are expected to:

1. Take all complaints or concerns of alleged harassment seriously no matter how minor or who is involved.
1. Ensure that any form of harassment or misconduct is immediately reported to People Business Partner.

1. Take appropriate action to prevent retaliation, or the alleged misconduct from recurring, during and after an investigation.

Managers who knowingly allow or tolerate any form of harassment or retaliation, including the failure to immediately report such misconduct to People Business Partner, are in violation of this policy and subject to disciplinary action, including termination.

The Role of Individual Contributors

All employees have the responsibility to help create and maintain a work environment free of bullying and harassment and can help by:

1. Being aware of how their own behavior may affect others, and changing it if necessary.
1. Treating their colleagues with dignity and respect.
1. Taking a stand if they think inappropriate jokes or comments are being made to others.
1. Making it clear to others where they find their behavior unacceptable.
1. Intervening, if possible, to stop harassment or bullying from occurring.
1. Reporting promptly to their manager or the People Business Partner any incident of bullying or harassment witnessed by them.

The Role of People Business Partners

The Chief People Officer and People Business Partners are responsible for:

1. Ensuring that any individual filing a complaint and any accused individual(s) are made aware of the seriousness of misconduct.
1. Explaining GitLab's no tolerance harassment policy and investigation procedures to all individuals included in a complaint.
1. Arranging for an immediate investigation of alleged misconduct and the preparation of a written report summarizing the results of the investigation and making recommendations for remediation to designated company officials.
1. Notifying appropriate authorities (police, FBI, country specific bureaus) when criminal activities are alleged.
1. Exploring informal means of resolving potential harassment if a written (formal) complaint is not made when verbal allegations are shared.

Classification of disciplinary action

All individual team members, managers, and leaders will be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination, for any act of harassment they commit. Although disciplinary action will be specific to each case, it can generally be classified into 4 levels:

Level 1

First time occurrences of inappropriate behavior. An act out of character. After formal investigation, coworkers still feel comfortable working with the offender.

- Suspension (Paid/Unpaid based on country)
- Formal apology towards inflicted parties

Level 2

Recurring socially inappropriate behavior.

- Suspension (Paid/Unpaid based on country)
- Mandatory course on Inclusivity
- Formal apology towards inflicted parties
- Written admonition
- Potential transfer to another team
- Potential of termination

Level 3

Major infraction, including retaliation, or recurring socially inappropriate behavior after a written admonition.

- Termination of employment

Level 4

Serious cases, including any criminal offence.

- Termination of employment
- Reported to the Police/Authorities

Training & Guidance

Training and guidance on understanding, preventing, and dealing with discrimination and sexual harassment will be provided to both managers and individual team members. The courses and the related enrollment logic can be found here. This training will be provided on a regular cadence, consistent with local requirements, and/or when new legal requirements are introduced.

Country & US State-Specific Requirements

GitLab BV (The Netherlands)

Complaint Procedure

If attempts to resolve the problem in an informal manner prove insufficient or if these attempts were refused or proved to be ineffective, the victim may follow the procedure below:

1. Write a formal complaint and send it to the Chief People Officer or the People Business Partner. When the Chief People Officer or the People Business Partner receives the complaint, they must immediately handle the written complaint.
1. The Chief People Officer or the People Business Partner shall ensure that the complaint is included in a dated document within a reasonable period of time, and includes the statements of the victim and any witnesses, as well as the outcome of any mediation.
1. The victim and the witnesses receive a copy of their statement.
1. A copy of the complaint will immediately be handed over to the responsible person within GitLab.

1. After submission of the complaint to the responsible person within GitLab, an investigation will be initiated. This investigation may be conducted by a third (independent) party, depending on the complaint itself.

1. After the investigation, the conclusion and a proposal for appropriate measures will be handed over to the responsible person within GitLab.

1. GitLab will take the appropriate measures.

Sanctions

Without prejudice to the provisions that may arise from a judicial process instituted by the victim, one or more of the following sanctions shall be imposed on the person guilty of undesirable conduct:

- A written admonition.
- Transfer to another department.
- Termination of the agreement.

GitLab shall impose, by registered letter and within five working days, the sanctions imposed upon the person who has been guilty of undesirable behavior. In case an employee abuses this complaint procedure, the above sanctions may also apply for the employee.

GitLab BV (Belgium)

Psychosocial Intervention

GitLab has engaged with an external health and safety service called Mensura who are responsible for handling any complaints of harassment that are received but can not be resolved informally and internally. Team members in Belgium may contact this service if they wish and make a request for an informal or formal psychosocial intervention. A request for a formal intervention should include the following:

- a precise description of the constituent facts of violence, or psychological or sexual harassment at work, according to the Employee,
- when and where each of the events took place,
- the identity of the person(s) involved,
- the request to the Employer to take appropriate measures to put an end to the events.

The psychosocial intervention advisor will investigate further and provide a report to the employee and People Business Partner with a recommended course of action.

Protection from Power Harassment

"Power harassment" is defined as any act by a person using his/her authority in the workplace, such as job position or human relationship with a team member, beyond the appropriate scope of business conduct, which causes such team member mental distress or physical pain or degradation of the working environment.

The law defines power harassment as "remarks or behaviour by people taking advantage of their superior position that go beyond business necessity, thereby harming the workplace environment.

GitLab expressly prohibits any behaviour toward team members that falls within the definition of power harassment.

Depending on the individual, a person may feel dissatisfaction when given the instructions, advice, or guidance necessary in the ordinary course of business. In such cases where the actions are conducted within the scope of appropriate business practice, they should not fall under the category of power harassment. Examples of power harassment include, but may not be limited to:

- assault or injury (physical abuse)
- threats, defamation, insult or slander (mental abuse)
- isolation, ostracization or neglect (cutting them off from human relationships)
- forcing a team member to perform certain tasks, which are clearly unnecessary for the business or impossible to be performed or interrupting their normal duties (excessive work demands)
- ordering a team member to perform menial tasks which are far below the team member's ability or experience and do not provide any work at all for the team member relevant to the business (insufficient work demands)
- excessively inquiring into the private affairs of a team member (invasion of privacy)

Team members who feel that they may have been subjected to power harassment may bring their complaints to their People Business Partner, who will engage the appropriate internal consultation services and respond to claims. GitLab is prohibited from dismissing or treating unfairly any team members who report harassment cases or cooperate in an investigation or consultation process.

Prohibition of Sexual Harassment

Team members are prohibited from any activities that cause disadvantage or discomfort to other employees or that are damaging to the work environment by way of speech or behaviour of a sexual nature. GitLab shall take all necessary measures in managing employment to prevent sexual harassment at the workplace.

Prohibition of Harassment Due to Pregnancy, Childbirth, Child Care Leave, or Family Care Leave

Team members are prohibited from any activities that are damaging to the work environment of other employees by way of speech or behaviour related to pregnancy, childbirth, etc., or use of systems or measures related to pregnancy, childbirth, child care, family care, etc. GitLab shall take necessary measures in managing employment to prevent harassment due to pregnancy, childbirth, child care leave, family care leave, etc. at the workplace.

Prohibition of Any Other Forms of Harassment

In addition to the prohibitions listed above, team members are prohibited from any other forms of harassment at the workplace that are damaging to the work environment of other team members such as by way of speech or behaviours related to sexual orientation or gender identification.

GitLab LTD (The UK)

Complaint Procedure

1. If the employee does not wish to address the harasser directly, or the behavior does not cease, then the employee (accompanied by a colleague/union representative if they wish) should report the misconduct to their line manager or a member of the People Business Partner. Wherever appropriate the line manager and or the People Business Partner may attempt to resolve the situation on an informal basis.

1. If the informal approach does not resolve matters or the situation is too serious to be dealt with informally, the employee will need to make a formal complaint to the line manager and/or the People Business Partner.

1. Once reported, a formal investigation will be conducted impartially by People Business Partner or by an independent third party, depending on the severity and circumstances of the complaint. Individual(s) reporting an incident or pattern of behavior will be asked to provide a written account of any action(s) causing concern, dates and times such actions occurred, and names of anyone involved, including participants and witnesses. All complaints or concerns of alleged harassment or discrimination will be taken seriously and handled promptly, sensitively and confidentially.

1. Wherever possible the Company will try to ensure that the employee and the alleged harasser are not required to work together while the complaint is being investigated. This may involve the alleged harasser being suspended or transferred to another work area. In very serious cases, a criminal offence may have been committed and the employee may wish to report the matter to the police/authorities.

1. Employees will be kept informed of the general progress of the investigation and the outcome of any disciplinary proceeding.

1. If, following investigation, the complaint is upheld, appropriate disciplinary proceedings will be brought against the alleged harasser up to and including dismissal for gross misconduct. GitLab will work to prevent recurrence of the behavior.

1. If, following investigation, the complaint is not upheld, then the company will support both the employee and the alleged harasser in rebuilding their working relationship and may consider making arrangements to avoid the employee and the alleged harasser working together.

1. Where the employee is unhappy with the outcome of the formal investigation, they have the right to appeal against the outcome if they can demonstrate why they believe a particular aspect of the investigation has materially affected the outcome. Appeals must be submitted within 10 working days of receiving the outcome of the complaint.

1. If an appeal is submitted, the People Business Partner will arrange a meeting to take place with the appeal chair within a reasonable time period. The appeal chair's decision will be final and there is no further right of appeal. The appeal chair will be independent of the investigation.

GitLab Ireland Ltd

Complaint Procedure and Contacts

The Company is aware of and recognises the effect that bullying, harassment and sexual harassment can have on its team members.

- "Contact Person" · Team Member Relations: teammemberrelations@gitlab.com
- "Designated Person" - For each formal complaint that is reported through Lighthouse, a Designated Person will be appointed by the Company to deal with the specific issue.

Informal Procedure

1. The Company is of the view that an informal approach to solving matters can often be effective. In the first instance, an attempt should be made to address an allegation of bullying, harassment and sexual harassment on an informal basis through the procedure set out below.

1. If you believe you are being bullied, harassed or sexually harassed you should explain clearly to the alleged perpetrator(s) that you find the behaviour in question to be unacceptable. If you would find it difficult to approach the alleged perpetrator(s) directly, then you may seek the advice or assistance of Team Member Relations. You may then request the assistance of Team Member Relations in raising the issue with the alleged perpetrator(s). Any approach made by Team Member Relations on your behalf to the alleged perpetrator(s) will be on a confidential, non-confrontational basis and will seek to resolve the issue in an informal low-key manner.

1. If you decide that it would not be appropriate for the Company to deal with your complaint under the informal procedure, or having done so you are not satisfied with the outcome, you should proceed to the Formal Procedure.

Formal procedure

1. To begin with, you should make a formal complaint in writing via Lighthouse, giving concrete examples of the alleged bullying, harassment and/or sexual harassment, the dates of any such incidents and details of witnesses, where possible. You may make your complaint anonymously if you wish.

1. The alleged perpetrator(s) will then be notified in writing that an allegation of bullying, harassment and/or sexual harassment has been made against them. A meeting will be arranged at which the alleged perpetrator(s) will be told that they will be given a fair opportunity to respond to each and every allegation of bullying, harassment and/or sexual harassment and they will be given a copy of your written complaint together with a copy of this policy.

1. A copy of this policy will also be provided to the complainant.

1. One or more designated members of the People Group (the Designated Person) will be responsible for carrying out an initial investigation into your complaint. The investigator may agree on terms of reference of the investigation with both you and the alleged perpetrator(s) in advance, and you and the alleged perpetrator(s) will be notified of the likely timescale for completion. This initial meeting will take place as soon as reasonably practicable following receipt of your complaint. If the Company considers it appropriate to do so, the Company reserves the right, at its discretion, to appoint or engage an external third party to conduct the investigation.

1. Where the allegations made are of a severe nature, the Company reserves the right to suspend the alleged perpetrator(s) on full pay pending an investigation.

1. The investigator will meet you, the alleged perpetrator(s) and any witnesses or other relevant persons on an individual basis to gather information surrounding the allegation. You and the alleged perpetrator(s) may be accompanied to such meeting by a colleague. The Company reserves the right to refuse your chosen representative attendance at the meeting where appropriate. You will be given the opportunity to change your chosen representative.

1. Every effort will be made to carry out and complete the investigation as quickly as possible and preferably within the agreed timeframe. Once the investigation is complete, the investigator will present a written report to management. Both the complainant and the alleged perpetrator(s) will be informed in writing of the investigator's report and both parties will be given the opportunity to comment on the report before any action is decided on by the Company.

1. If, on foot of the report, the Company decides that it is appropriate, a People group representative and applicable manager will meet formally with the alleged perpetrator(s) to determine an appropriate course of action. This may include counselling, monitoring, mediation and/or invoking the disciplinary procedure.

1. If the investigation concludes that based on the evidence, bullying, harassment or sexual harassment may have been perpetrated by an individual who is not a team member of the Company, the Company will decide what appropriate actions should be taken against such individuals including exclusion from Company premises or systems, suspension or termination of service/contract etc.

1. If the Company decides that the complaint is not well founded, a People group representative and applicable manager will formally meet with the complainant, again to determine an appropriate course of action. It may be that some kind of counselling or mediation session(s) is required between the complainant and the alleged perpetrator(s).

1. Either party may appeal the findings of an investigation under this procedure by submitting, in writing, within 5 working days of the Company's decision in respect of the complaint outlining the reasons for the appeal. The appeal will be heard on the points raised and will not involve reinvestigation of the complaint.

Mediation

1. Mediation is an alternative method of resolving issues relating to bullying, harassment and sexual harassment. Mediation involves the parties seeking to arrive at a solution through mutual agreement, rather than through an investigation and decision.

1. Mediation provides a confidential opportunity for the person who feels that they have been bullied, harassed or sexually harassed and the person(s) accused of carrying out this inappropriate behaviour to discuss the matter and to reach an agreement on their continuing working relationship.

1. Mediation is conducted in private, and is directly between the parties concerned, with the support of a mediator, who will act as an independent facilitator. Either party may withdraw from the process at any time by notifying the mediator, in writing, that they wish to do so.

1. If both parties agree to resolve the issue by mediation, the Company will arrange the mediation process. An appropriate person, acceptable to both parties, from within or outside the Company will be assigned as mediator. The Team Member Relations specialist may serve as the internal mediator, if acceptable to both parties.

1. If the mediation process results in an agreement acceptable to both parties, the mediator will draw up a written record of the terms of the settlement for signature by both parties.

1. If mediation breaks down or fails to achieve its goal, the matter can be processed through the other stages of this procedure. The person involved in the mediation process will not be involved in the investigation process.

GitLab Inc and GitLab Federal LLC

In addition to EthicsPoint and Lighthouse, please review the Team Member Relations Specialist section. GitLab also offers a Harassment Complaint Form that any team member may use to document any instance of any type of workplace harassment. Simply copy the form, fill it out with your information and send it to our Team Member Relations Specialist at teammemberrelations@gitlab.com.

Celebrations

GitLab Anniversary

At GitLab we like to acknowledge and celebrate team member milestones and contributions. This means that those celebrating their first, third, fifth and tenth hire-date anniversary will receive a token of acknowledgement.

Along with this, all celebrants regardless of length of tenure will receive a mention in the team-member-updates channel which allows the greater GitLab community to share in the celebration!

Anniversary Gifts

Team members celebrating a GitLab anniversary will have the option to select a custom swag item only available to those celebrating an anniversary. Team members celebrating their one-year anniversary have the option to receive a custom GitLab Tech-Caddy. Those celebrating their three-year anniversary have the option of a branded 3-piece tumbler, pen and notebook set. Folks celebrating their five-year anniversary have the option of a GitLab branded computer backpack. And finally, team members celebrating their tenth-year anniversary have the option of receiving a custom swag package.

No action is required by team members in order to receive these gifts! If you are due an anniversary gift the vendor team, Brilliant, will email you at the beginning of the following month that you are celebrating your anniversary with a specific redemption link. The People Connect runs a monthly report from Workday looking back to the previous month to identify the eligible team members and share this with the swag vendor.

Redeeming New Hire Swag and Anniversary Swag

Please note: the New Hire and Anniversary Swag links are provided specifically for the redemption of preselected items. These items are not eligible for exchange or conversion to swag shop credit.

If you have any questions or need further assistance regarding New Hire or Anniversary Swag, please don't hesitate to reach out to the People Connect team via HelpLab.

Team Member Birthdays

GitLab encourages team members to take a day of vacation on their special day in alignment with our Paid Time Off Policy. If your celebration happens to fall over a weekend please be sure to take an alternate day such as the Friday prior or the Monday after.

Team Member Retirement

Retirement marks the end of decades of working life and is a significant life event. Celebrating a team member's retirement is an opportunity to acknowledge their career and express appreciation for their contributions. You may organize a virtual farewell gathering or an E-Card where team members can share memories and express best wishes as they embark on this new chapter.

Team Member Gifts and Flowers

For questions on our policy and how to submit your Team Member Gift and Flower expenses, including which categories to use in Navan, please refer to the Global Travel and Expenses handbook page.

Please note: The intended recipient will need to provide their residential address directly for the purposes of flower / gift delivery - personal information may not be disclosed without team member consent.

Recommended sites:

- 1-800 Flowers
- Flora Queen

Sending an E-Card

Another nice way to celebrate someone, express your appreciation or show support to a team member is by creating an e-card and having team members sign the card via DocuSign. Have fun with this, get creative when making the card using google docs, google slides or a program of your choice.

An example can be found here.

Once you have your card created:

1. Upload the document to DocuSign
1. Once uploaded, assign signatures to those individuals that you would like to sign and then send the request to those individuals
1. When an individual has signed you will get an email notification
1. After you have all of your signatures then download the document from DocuSign
1. Slack or email the card to the recipient

SECTION: people-group/competencies.md

GitLab has competencies as a common framework to learn things. This page is a Single Source of Truth (SSoT) resource for our competencies.

A competency is defined as a set of skills, knowledge, and behaviors that allow an individual to effectively and efficiently carry out their role. There are three key categories of competencies at GitLab:

- Values Competencies - a common set of behaviors and skills that reflect the organizational values needed across the workforce
- Remote Competencies - the skills and knowledge required to perform in an all-remote environment
- Functional Competencies - the skills, knowledge, and behaviors required to perform at the functional level

Principles

1. We will re-use the same materials for different audiences by having them on a Single Source of Truth (SSoT) competency page
1. We will make competencies accessible to everyone in the world, including knowledge assessments, to validate understanding a competency (via Google forms and Zapier)
1. We will work handbook first so everyone can contribute

{{< youtube "oXTZQplCxeE" >}}

Where we use competencies

The following initiatives should use the same competencies as their SSoT. Instead of maintaining separate materials they should link back to the most relevant place where the competency is defined. For general competencies, this is likely our values page. For role specific competencies, this is likely the job-family page. For example, we should have one SSoT for how to articulate the value of GitLab.

1. Job family requirements
1. Interview scoring
1. Promotion criteria
1. 9 box assessments
1. Performance/Potential criteria
1. Succession planning
1. Learning and development
1. PDPs/PIPs
1. Career development
1. 360 reviews
1. Sales training
1. Sales enablement sessions
1. Field enablement
1. GitLab Training tracks
1. GitLab University
1. Customer Success Skills Exchange Sessions

1. Professional services offerings
 1. Onboarding both general and department specific
 1. Learn@GitLab
 1. Customer Success GitLab Demos platform & catalog
 1. Customer Services Guided Explorations (How Guided Explorations are engineered for compounded reuse for competency development)
 1. Udemy course
 1. Education service offering

Content

1. Content is in the relevant section of our handbook (with embedded videos and pictures)
1. Knowledge assessments are created in Google Forms (via Zapier)

Structure

Some competencies are based on job-level and others are based on your role.

Values competencies are defined by job-level. For example, the definition of competency in the GitLab value of iteration and how you demonstrate that competency are different whether you are a Product Manager or a Chief Product Officer.

In general, the scope of impact and expected behaviors expands as job level increases.

Level	Scope of Impact	Expected Behaviors
-----	-----	-----

Intern	Contribute	Learns/Supports
Associate	Own work	Learns/Develops
Intermediate	Work within team	Grows/Acts
Senior	Cross functional work	Models
Staff/Manager	Across Teams	Implements
Senior Manager	Across Sub-Departments	Fosters
Director	Across Departments	Drives the framework, strategy and plans
Senior Director	Across Divisions	Develops the framework and strategy
VP	Across Company + External Stakeholders	Leads Changes
EVP/CXO	Across Company + External Stakeholders	Champions

Remote Work Competencies are defined by role: team member or people leader. Team members should understand and apply remote work competencies to their daily work. People leaders should understand, apply, coach and develop team members on remote work competencies.

List

Each of the values and remote work competencies have a knowledge assessment in the relevant section of the handbook that you can take to self assess your current level of understanding.

Values Competencies

1. Collaboration

- 1. Results
- 1. Efficiency
- 1. Diversity, Inclusion & Belonging
- 1. Iteration
- 1. Transparency

In addition to the knowledge assessments for each value, you can take this Knowledge Assessment to become certified in the values.

Remote Work Competencies

- 1. Manager of One
- 1. Effective Communication : includes Working async: Why and How, Well written artifacts, Single Source of Truth and Producing video
- 1. Handbook first
- 1. Using GitLab

Test your knowledge and self-reflect on the Remote Work Competencies by completing the knowledge assessment as a People Leader or an Individual Contributor. Earn at least an 80% to receive a certificate!

Functional Competencies

- 1. Field Competencies
- 1. Engineering Competencies
- 1. Product Management Competencies

Manager and Leadership Competencies

In addition to our values, remote work, and functional competencies, we have identified manager competencies that serve as the foundation to a whole person approach to management. Our leadership and management development programs incorporate the competencies as the bedrock for creating impactful training for our people.

- 1. Emotional Intelligence
- 1. Modeling a Culture of Feedback
- 1. Coaching
- 1. Conflict Resolution
- 1. Building High Performing Teams

Contract Templates

GitLab's Team Member contract templates are accessible (for reference) within GitLab only (here). The DRI for all GitLab Team Member contracts is the People Connect Team. Any changes to any contracts should be requested to the People Connect Team and will require approval from our Senior Director of Legal, Employment.

Process for Suggesting Changes to the Contract Templates

Contracts are audited and updated on a regular basis. All suggested changes should be added to the current Global Employment Contract Audit issue. If immediate changes are needed to any one of the contract templates, follow the process below:

1. Create a Contract Update Issue - The template can be found here.
1. Open the relevant contract template, which automatically redirects to its original editable Google Doc.
1. If you have editing rights in the doc, change the document view to "Suggesting" mode (top right corner). If you do not have editing rights, you are able to make a comment on the doc or alternatively ping the People Connect Team member for assistance with having the suggestions added to the contract for approval.
1. Any edits that are made will then be made as a suggestion to the contract.
1. Once you have made the required changes, please tag the Senior Manager, People Operations as well as our Director of Legal, Employment to view and approve the relevant changes.
1. Once the changes have been approved, it is important to notify the Candidate Experience Specialist Team to update the contracts in Greenhouse.

No changes or edits should be made to the contracts without the required approval.

The Senior Manager, Global Enablement reviews if all Greenhouse tokens are correct

1. See here for current set of tokens
1. Update tokens on the contract if applicable
1. Review in Greenhouse if all tokens are available (admin access is needed for that):
 - Log in to Greenhouse > click on: Settings (Gear Icon) > Offer Templates > click on: Upload New > Template Name: Country Name (OTE or no OTE) > Make sure All Offices All Departments and All Employment Types are all selected > Upload contract template as .doc file only > Save Template
 - Click on Test > Make sure all tokens have blue checks meaning the tokens are valid
1. If you are updating a contract that is already in use (not for a brand new entity), you need to be sure to delete the old version of the contract out of Greenhouse.
1. Delete the uploaded contract again, if it was just a test and final legal approval is still required

Correcting an error in an issued employment contract

1. If an error is noticed, please make the Associate Manager, Candidate Experience aware.
1. The Associate Manager, Candidate Experience will assign the contract correction to a Candidate Experience Specialist, ideally to the same person, that created the already issued contract.
1. If the change is payroll relevant The Candidate Experience Specialist makes total-rewards@gitlab.com and uspayroll@gitlab.com or nonuspayroll@gitlab.com aware.
1. The Candidate Experience Specialist creates a new corrected contract using above templates and adds the following sentence in: "This agreement is effective {Hire date} and supersedes the employment agreement dated {date of erroneous agreement}."
 - Make a copy of the template and save it to the working documents folder on Google Drive to edit
1. The Candidate Experience Specialist creates a Cover Letter explaining the reason for the correction.

- Make a copy of the template and save it to the working documents folder on Google Drive to edit

1. Once the new contract and cover letter have been created, ping a Candidate Experience Specialist for auditing.

1. Send the audited created documents and any additional details on the correction to Legal for review.

1. Once approved by Legal stage the cover letter and new contract in DocuSign and send it for signature first to the Company signatory and subsequently to the team member.

1. Upload the signed documents to the team member's documents folder in Workday.

1. If applicable, make any necessary updates to the team member's Workday profile and email Total Rewards total-rewards@gitlab.com and Payroll uspayroll@gitlab.com or nonuspayroll@gitlab.com to notify them of the changes.

Job Change Letter

If a team member changes roles at GitLab and the approval goes through Greenhouse, the process for a Job Change Letter is laid out in the Job Change Letter section on the CES Contract Processes handbook page.

If a team member changes roles at GitLab and the approval goes through Workday, the process for a Job Change Letter is laid out in the Job Change Letter section on the Promotions & Transfers handbook page.

For other instances such as a Relocation, the People Connect Team member will create a Relocation letter according to the parameters as listed in the Relocation within the Same Country section on the Relocation handbook page.

Job Change Letter Inc to Fed Entity Change

For US team members who are changing from the Federal entity to Inc, or Inc to Federal, a job change letter will need to be created. Add the below verbiage to the appropriate letter template:

- GitLab is pleased to inform you that you are receiving a [transfer OR promotion] to [GitLab Inc OR GitLab Federal, LLC] as {{JOBTITLE}} effective as of {{STARTDATE}}.

Background Screenings

GitLab uses appropriate controls to ensure that its team members, assets, customer relationships, and information are protected. To reduce these risks, GitLab will obtain and review background information of covered prospective, and, as applicable, current team members as allowed by local law.

GitLab currently contracts with Sterling Talent Solutions to provide background screenings. For all candidates being considered for a position at GitLab, an employment history for the last 5 years and/or the three most recent employers will be verified in accordance with applicable local law (if applicable local law limits the review of employment history to fewer years and/or employers, then GitLab follows local law) and screening will be performed against various denied party lists including but not limited to the Office of Foreign Asset Control's Specially Designated Nationals and Blocked Persons List. In jurisdictions where criminal records may be reviewed, criminal records will be requested. Additional screenings may include, where applicable and in accordance with local law, digital or document-based identity verification, a search against the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Office of Inspector General's List of Excluded Individuals/Entities and/or screening for financial related offenses and credit checks, when relevant to the position. GitLab may use the returned background information to make decisions regarding employment, where allowed by local law. No background screening will be run until a conditional offer has been made, unless local law explicitly requires otherwise.

Candidates are required to complete their background screening before onboarding at GitLab. All necessary steps will be taken to ensure background screenings are completed before a candidate begins their employment and a candidate's start date may be adjusted to satisfy this requirement. Circumstances beyond GitLab's control may serve as exceptions to this requirement such as exigent circumstances that affect access to background information such as natural disasters, public emergencies, significant outages, and other potentially unforeseen circumstances. All exceptions will be reviewed on an individual basis. GitLab will ensure each background screening is completed and satisfactory should a candidate need to onboard before their background screening has completed due to any exception.

GitLab does not currently require subsequent background screenings, or re-screenings, for current team members beyond onboarding/pre-hire requirements. Current team members may opt-in for additional background screenings if requested to work with specific customers.

The Candidate Experience Specialists will initiate all background screenings for candidates. The Senior Background Check Specialist will initiate any applicable retroactive background screenings or requested enhanced background screenings for current team members.

Please contact the Senior Background Check Specialist at backgroundchecks@gitlab.com or submit a request in HelpLab for additional assistance or questions.

Contractors, Contingent Workers, & Temporary Service Providers

Background screenings will be completed or verified for contractors, contingent workers, and/or temporary Service providers when requiring access to orange or red data and/or utilizing a GitLab laptop unless the vendor is an approved sub-processor or has valid Third Party Risk Management review. GitLab will complete these background screenings in accordance with local law and at minimum, criminal record information (or local equivalent) will be required. However, GitLab may also review similar criteria as mentioned above. GitLab will first request proof of completed background screenings from a vendor before completing one internally. Contractors, contingent workers, and/or temporary service providers must also have a completed background screening or have provided proof of a completed background screening before onboarding and/or provisioning any access at GitLab.

Disclosure and Authorization

Candidates (and, as applicable, current team members) will receive an email to fill out the background screening application. The application will ask for personal and professional information. The application process includes signing disclosure and consent forms which explain the rights of an individual undergoing the background screening. The application process is designed to take less than fifteen minutes to complete.

Candidates should gather each previous employer's name, address, position title held, employment start and end dates, manager's name, and contact information. Details for a Human Resources contact can be entered instead of a manager's contact details. Occasionally, and where permitted by law, Sterling will reach out to the candidate to retrieve additional documentation to act as proof of previous employment. Proof of employment can typically be provided in various ways, such as tax returns (e.g. W2s), pay stubs, LLC documentation, official company registrations, etc. In certain circumstances, the Senior Background Check Specialist may also reach out to candidates and/or team members for additional documentation.

Background screenings will act as an additional mechanism of transparency and will help to build trust with our clients.

Review Criteria for Candidates and Team Members

Reviews of background screenings are conducted by the Senior Background Check Specialist in accordance with the applicable law of the candidate's jurisdiction. The Senior Background Check Specialist will first review the report for omissions, inaccuracies, and/or discrepancies with employment, including, but not limited to, dates of employment, employer names, and/or positions held. If the report includes discrepancies related to employment, the Senior Background Check Specialist will take the necessary steps to investigate and adjudicate the discrepancies. The Senior Background Check Specialist may escalate the report, as necessary, to the Legal Employment team. Employment decisions based on the employment verification portions of the background screening report shall be finalized before any review of the criminal records information takes place.

If criminal record information has been provided, then it will be adjudicated in accordance with applicable local law. Generally, and subject to local law, criminal records are reviewed to determine if criminal convictions have a direct connection with an applicant's ability to fulfill the job duty with competence and integrity, while also considering the safety and/or security of GitLab team members, customers, vendors, and/or overall business. Decisions are made that are job related and consistent with business necessity. Arrest records are not considered during the adjudication process, nor is any criminal conviction information that is prohibited from being reviewed by applicable local law.

Probation Period

Upon joining GitLab, some team members (location-dependent, see the below table for detail about each location) will have a probationary period between 1 and 9 months. Common practice is for contracts in each country to have the maximum allowable probationary period. In case of relocation to a different country or change of contract, if a team member has continued service with GitLab (tenure with GitLab has been uninterrupted) and they have already passed the probationary period of their original location or contract, they do not need to go through the probation period of their new location or contract.

As per the onboarding process, the probation period status is added to Workday.

The People Connect Team is responsible for managing the probationary period process internally (communication with the team member, their manager, confirmation of probationary period completion, and updating Workday). In some instances, the People Connect Team may also be responsible for managing relationships with legal counsel externally on a global scale to ensure compliance and iteration.

If an exception request is made to end a probation period early, this should be escalated by the team member's manager to a skip-level and the People Business Partner/Team Member Relations Specialist via email. We will then evaluate the risk, performance and overall reason for the request. Further escalation to Legal might be necessary as well as decision making on how to proceed. There should be no expectation of approval.

Important steps during the Probation Period

For Managers

1. Managers are responsible for monitoring and specifically reviewing performance halfway through the probation period of their direct report.

1. If underperformance is an issue, or there is any hesitation regarding the successful completion of a probation period, this should be discussed immediately with Team Member Relations.

1. 28 days prior to the end of their direct reports' Probation Period, the manager will receive an email from Workday reminding them that their direct reports' probation period is coming to an end, and that there is a task in Workday for the manager to submit the outcome of the probation period.

- Note: For team members located in the Netherlands or Austria, the manager will receive an email from Workday, 14 days prior to the end of the probation period.

1. The Hiring Manager will select the appropriate probation outcome in Workday based on the team member's performance. A helpful job aid can be found here on this process.

For Team Members

1. If you have successfully passed your probation period, in addition to receiving the good news through your manager, you will also receive a probation period confirmation letter in Workday.

1. In your inbox, you can review this letter and then select Submit. This letter will then be saved in your Workday documents for future reference if needed.

PIAA (Proprietary Information and Assignment Agreement)

GitLab strives to help its team members maintain the ability to work on projects that are unrelated to GitLab's business, including other open-source projects. Our PIAA does not grant GitLab any rights to any creations that you may make that are not related to GitLab's business or the work you do for GitLab. That is, you are free to develop those creations without requesting approval in advance from GitLab.

If your employment contract was created prior to November 2017, we have created an amendment to the PIAA agreement which can be viewed here. It amends the 2A section of the PIAA. Please email people-connect@ who will complete and stage the document for signatures. The Amendment will first be signed by the team member and then by the requisite Company signatory.

Outside Employment (Paid or Unpaid), Projects, and Potentially-Conflicting Activities

GitLab recognizes that Rest and Time Off are Productive and encourages our team members to take time to relax and avoid burnout. However, GitLab also u
